Samsung Galaxy A30 has started receiving Android 10 update with One UI 2.0 in India, according to a media report. The update is reportedly designed with some optimisations and carries the February 2020 Android security patch. The Galaxy A30 was due to receive the Android 10 update in January, though the company appears to have delayed the rollout. The smartphone was launched in India back in February last year with an initial One UI version based on Android Pie. In the recent past, Samsung also brought some Android security patches to the Galaxy A30. The Android 10 update for the Samsung Galaxy A30 carries software version A305FDU4BTT3, reports SamMobile. The update is said to have omitted some of the preloaded features, including the built-in screen recorder. However, core Android 10 features such as a system-wide Dark mode and improved Digital Wellbeing are apparently provided through the latest version. The changelog provided by the Samsung-focussed blog has also highlighted the presence of the February 2020 security patch. Furthermore, the Samsung Galaxy A30's Android 10 update is sized at around 1.5GB. It is safe to say that the new software version would take some time to reach all Galaxy A30 users in the country. Gadgets 360 has reached out to Samsung for clarity on the rollout and will update this space as and when it responds. Having said that, you can check the arrival of the Android 10 update on your Samsung Galaxy A30 by going through Settings > Software update > Download and install. The roadmap posted by Samsung on its Members app in November showed that the Android 10 update would reach the Galaxy A30 in January. The smartphone was up until now running Android Pie. Google is no longer naming its mobile operating system after sweet treats. Instead, the company is moving to version numbers, starting with Android 10. Check out our article to learn more about what caused the change and some of the thinking behind it. September 3, 2019: On Twitter, Essential announced Android 10 is now rolling out to the Essential Phone. The company noted the update is rolling out "for select open market customers." Android 10 should be available for all Essential Phone owners in the coming days. 2. OnePlus Android 10 update: The company's global community manager said the update is expected to be released sometime in Q1 2020. November 4, 2019: OnePlus is not a stable release, but a good first step towards hitting that ETA we mentioned above. More details here. September 4, 2019: OnePlus has announced that the OnePlus 6 and 6T will get Android 10 by the end of this month. The company also released open beta builds for the two phones, which are "meant to prepare your devices for the Android 10 update" — learn more here. September 18, 2019: OnePlus has released the second Android 10 open beta update for the OnePlus 7 and 7 Pro. The update appears to mostly involve bug fixes and small design tweaks — learn more here. September 21, 2019: Great news for all you OnePlus 7 and 7 Pro owners out there. The company is now rolling out the stable version of Android 10 to both devices. October 2, 2019: Around two weeks ago, OnePlus started rolling out the Android 10 update for the OnePlus 7 series. However, according to users on Reddit as well as the official OnePlus forums, many people still don't have the update. OnePlus did say the Android 10 upgrade would be a slow rollout, but that usually means over the span of a few days. At this point, it's been 12 days since OnePlus announced the launch, which suggests there's been some sort of delay. It's possible OnePlus halted the rollout entirely. Read the full story here. October 10, 2019: OnePlus has announced that every OnePlus device from the OnePlus 5 forward will get a stable version of Android 10. Older devices will need to wait quite a while to get it, but the update will come. The OnePlus 6 and 6T will get the beta update by the end of October 2019, while the stable variant will be rolled out a month later. The OnePlus 5 and 5T should receive the stable update in the second quarter of 2020. October 14, 2019: OnePlus is rolling out Android 10 to the OnePlus 7 and 7 Pro — for real this time. In a community post, the Chinese brand confirmed that "version 10.0 was paused due to certain bugs" and that Oxygen 10.0.1 is now rolling out. It should reach all devices in a few days — learn more here. October 21, 2019: The Android 10 Open Beta build is now rolling out to the OnePlus 5 and 5T, which comes with a few bug fixes and tweaks. The update should reach users widely over the next few days. November 12, 2019: Pete Lau has explained on the company's forum why OnePlus 7 Pro 5G users have to wait until Q1 to get the Android 10 update. The executive said that 5G "uses a different communications module to establish a faster connection as opposed to 4G, and requires a deeper level of understanding and more rigorous tests, debugging and optimizations to be done to our software and hardware." He also added that "to achieve the best experience possible, we had to make system optimizations from the fundamental system architecture, in order to deliver a truly fantastic 5G experience." It looks like the process is a lot more complicated and time-consuming than it may look, which is why users will have to wait a few months for the update. You can read his full statement here. November 15, 2019: The Android 10 update for the OnePlus 6 and 6T has been halted due to various bugs. OnePlus said it's "working on a new build with more issue fixing." The company didn't specify when the update will roll out globally, only saying it'll be available "once it's ready." November 25, 2019: OnePlus has confirmed that the OnePlus 10 update for the OnePlus 6 and 6T is almost ready and will start rolling out again soon. Right now, it is awaiting CTS approval. If all goes smoothly, users should expect the update next week. February 14, 2020: T-Mobile variants of the OnePlus 6T are now finally receiving the stable Android 10. The update comes in at around 1.8GB. 3. Samsung Android 10 update: September 17, 2019: Looks like Samsung will soon release its first Android 10 beta update. Rumors have it that the company will roll it out in the US and Europe in early October. There's no word on which devices will get it, but it's a good bet we'll see it on new flagship series such as the Galaxy Note 10 and the Galaxy S10. October 23, 2019: Samsung has confirmed that the One UI 2.0 beta — based on Android 10 — for the Galaxy Note 10 series will come to the US. The rollout seems to be restricted to the regular Note 10 and Note 10 Plus models, with no mention of the 5G variants. Only unlocked phones will be compatible. In addition to the US, the beta program has also been confirmed for Germany. November 7, 2019: The third iteration of the One UI 2.0 beta is rolling out now to Samsung Galaxy S10, S10 Plus, and S10e devices. The latest version of the Android 10-based update is available now to all beta program testers and includes a bunch of bug fixes — learn more here. November 14, 2019: The beta version of the Android 10 update for the unlocked Galaxy Note 10 and 10 Plus has apparently been launched in the US. Users can sign up for the update via the Samsung Members app. November 18, 2019: Samsung is rolling out its second Android 10 beta to Galaxy Note 10 and Note 10 Plus devices. The new One UI 2.0 beta carries the software version N97FXXU1ZSK8 and has apparently been spotted on Note 10 devices in India. The same update will likely hit devices in the US, Germany, and South Korea soon. November 20, 2019: Samsung is shipping out the Android 10-based One UI 2.0 beta to the Galaxy Note 9 in South Korea. This bodes well for a release in other markets, as Samsung doesn't usually take its time to bring a One UI 2.0 beta to other regions. So we're expecting a US and European roll-out in the coming days. November 21, 2019: Samsung is pushing out the sixth beta update to the Galaxy S10 family. The update is apparently being rolled out to all countries where the Galaxy S10 beta is available — learn more here. The update is only rolling out in Germany for now but is expected to make its way to other markets soon. November 29, 2019: Samsung UK and India have revealed their Android 10 update roadmaps, which are a little bit different than the one shared by Samsung Israel a few days ago. Samsung's 2 018 and 2019 flagships will get updated to Android 10-based One UI 2.0 in January 2020 in both countries. This differs from the Israeli roadmap, which shows that the Galaxy S9 series will only get the update in April 2020, while the other 2018 and 2019 flagships get it in January. The Indian roadmap also gives us update details regarding the Galaxy M series, noting that the Galaxy M20 and M30 will receive the Android 10 update in January 2020. Other M-series phones slated to get the update are the Galaxy M40 (March 2020), Galaxy M30s (April 2020), and Galaxy M10s (May 2020).
